MGR. WM. O'BRIEN

CONGRATULATED BY MANY FRIENDS ON HIS NEW HONOR

The people of St. Patrick's parish are greatly elated over the elevation of their beloved pastor, Rev. William O'Brien to the rank of monsignor. That title could not be conferred upon a more zealous or more devoted priest. His parishioners and friends in this city will find a way to express their pleasure at this recognition of his worth by Cardinal O'Connell and the Holy Father at Rome. Father O'Brien is so humble and so retiring in manner that he dislikes anything in the nature of public display; but already some societies are taking steps to express their gratification at his elevation. Since the announcement by Cardinal O'Connell, Fr. O'Brien has been besieged by friends offering their felicitations.

LABOR TROUBLE

May Spread Throughout New England and New York

LATEST FEATURES OF STRIKE

Labor leaders may extend strike to all American Woolen Co.'s mills. Attempt to secure Leader Ettor's release postponed until Tuesday. New strike leader says only 5000 operatives are at work. Mill agents say they have nearly one-half of their regular force.

THE STRIKE MAY SPREAD

LAWRENCE, Feb. 3.—The expediency of extending the strike of textile workers in this city, which involves more than 15,000 persons, to all the mills of the American Woolen Co., will be decided on tomorrow at a conference in behalf of members of the executive committee of the Industrial Workers of the World, the union which has assumed responsibility for the organization of the strike in this city. This statement was made today by William Yates of New Bedford, who has stepped into the local leadership made vacant by the arrest of Joseph Ettor, a few days ago, the prime mover in the local strike. It is understood that should the general strike against the American Woolen Co., which has mills throughout New England and New York state, be decided on by the executive committee the sympathetic movement may affect many other mills, manufacturing both cotton and woolen goods in New England.

The movement to crystallize the general strike proposed against the American Woolen Co.'s mills has been taken up by the committee which directed the strike against that corporation in 1902 which centered in Olneyville, R. I. Much of the support for the present movement comes from that place, where the American Woolen Co. has several mills. Members of the executive council of the I. W. W. are now on the way to Boston from all parts of the country. It is expected that at least half a dozen members of the committee, including William Trautmann of Chicago, Speed of San Francisco, Koettgen of Paterson, N. J., Halerow of St. Louis and possibly Warner C. Smith of Denver will attend the meeting. Ettor is a member of this committee and may send a message from the Essex county jail here where he is confined.

The news from Boston today that the attempt to secure Ettor's release together with that of Arturo Giovannitti, another strike leader, through habeas corpus proceedings, has been postponed until Tuesday, was very disappointing to the leaders and others interested in the success of the strike. It is still contended by them, however, that the cause of the strikers has been aided more than hurt by their leader's arrest.

The claim was made today by Mr. Yates that of the 37,000 persons which he estimates are employed in the textile industry in this city under normal conditions, not more than 5000 are now at work. Most of the mill agents assert that their plants are running with between 25 and 50 per cent. of the regular force. A medium between the two claims, which would place the number of operatives at work now at about 12,000 to 15,000, is regarded as a fair estimate. The remainder of the operatives are divided in the proportions of about two-thirds strikers and one-third persons who have been forced out of employment either through lack of work or for other reasons.

PATROLMAN D. W. LANE

Has Been in the Police Department 33 Years

Patrolman Daniel W. Lane, the "old timer" of the police force here, has been in the department in point of service, longer than any other man. He last rounded out his 33rd year as a member of the department, and he is still as active today as when he joined the force. He is regarded by his superior officers as one of the most efficient men in the department.

Patrolman Lane was appointed a member of the police force in January, 1879, by Mayor J. A. G. Richardson.

Donald of the city solicitor's office was his master. Mr. Lane was appointed city marshal. His first assignment was to a beat in Centralville. At that time there was unlimited license in this city and liquor saloons in Centralville were very numerous. In fact in our building in Bridge street near the Centralville bridge there were four licensed saloons.

The beats were very large and the hours the officers had to work were long. There was no police telegraph system, neither was there a patrol wagon in those days. When an arrest was made the officer had to lead the prisoner as best he could to the police station. It was anything but an enviable task to escort an intoxicated person to the Market street building. And especially was it hard to handle a person who wanted to fight from the time he was placed under arrest until he was landed in a cell.

While some persons refer to the golden days as happy days they were anything but happy ones for the over-worked members of the police department.

Patrolman Lane has the proud distinction of being one of the three men who were appointed regular policemen without having to pass through a probationary period. The other two men were John Stevens, who

FLOOR BURNED

An alarm from box 2 at 2:11 o'clock this afternoon summoned a portion of the fire department to a slight fire in a house at 101 Chester street belonging to A. Saarther. The fire started in the rear of a small stove in one of the rooms of the building and before the blaze was extinguished a hole was burned through the flooring. It is thought that the blaze was caused by an over-heated stove setting. No word as yet.

"What are you trying to give the old man?" said a scare, and said if you were wanted for anything serious you wouldn't be found. Now go along about your business and don't trouble me a foot or yourself," Mr. Lane said.

He was nothing left for him to do but to leave orders and he walked away telling that his first routine as police officer was a very bare and unsatisfactory one, so say nothing of the difficulties that went with it.

"What's the matter here?" asked Mr. Lane.

"Not a thing in the world," purred a woman who stood a little way back while the man was sitting. Mr. Lane noticed that the woman was a bit under the influence of humor and began smiling. He patted his honest workman who had just finished his sumo after a hard day's work.

MR. I. L. SHOWEM SPRINGS A GAG ON THE COUNT

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL

Will Meet Monday Afternoon to Consider Department Estimates

All of the city departments have their estimates ready for the committee on appropriations and the committee, which includes the five members of the city council, will meet Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock to receive a copy of the estimates. The work of cutting costs and saving money has been done by the city engineers for the last year, and in time to have a sum turned over to the city. The purchase price was $6,000,000, and the price quoted today is $5,900,000, a loss.

There were 14,100 houses in the city, 11,500 yards of asphalt and 2,500 yards of hickory strips for the Elmwood Street boulevard, was awarded the Bon Marche Co., made the and the men responsible for their great interest will be satisfied.

Sandwich Suspect

The board of health is pretty well prepared to meet the year's surprises. It is understood that those who wish to be paid and the attendees will be asked to pay.

Heretofore the appropriations committee was made up of aldermen and, therefore, had chickenpox, not smallpox, and their way of doing business was to sit around the heads of departments and ask for the purpose of answering questions and to show why their estimates should not be reduced. The work of this joint committee was not always satisfactory, but it sometimes happened that there were men on the committee who wanted to have some discussion, perhaps in connection with the introduction of bills.

The ordinance relating to appropriations, however, we take it that the committee has not been charged, requires the appropriations committee to report not later than Feb. 15, the committees of former years, for instance, did not present their reports on time. While it was generally conceded that it would be able to get through its work in three or four meetings, it often happened that a team of two meetings were held.

Committees on appropriations in former years were wont to go to great lengths to present their reports, but it is understood that in the present individual council will present the more formal and direct with the introduction.

Collection of Taxes

There has been some criticism of the action of the committee on collection of taxes in making extra effort to collect, rather than to collect only by reason of the deficit, because of poverty, idleness, or other inability of the persons assessed to pay the full tax. The assessors, however, in writing, under oath, state the reason why they cannot be collected. The assessors, after due inquiry, may affect such tax on any particular person, so that he shall contribute to the collector and his committee shall discharge the collector from further obligation to collect the tax so affected, but no power is delegated under the Constitution of the state, within the boundaries of which it is assessed.

METCALF'S WILL

To be Contested by His Nieces

BOSTON, Feb. 3.—Declaring that his family George P. Metcalf of South Hadley, a former treasurer of the First Congregational Church, died intestate, James Delaney, lawyer, gave him power of attorney to dispose of his estate, which was placed upon the property for the purpose of procuring $600,000 from Sullivan in the forwarded to him, that the mortgage was not recorded, and that the sum was forwarded to the claimant in account of damages due the plaintiff from the defendant.

He then goes on to tell of the length of his practice of law and that of his partners and says that no division or adjustment of profits has ever been made.

Latter in the document of complaint he mentions a certain piece of real estate located in Bissell's Bay, value $2,000, which he claims his wife, joining with Daniel H. Corliss, gave him power of attorney to dispose of.

He then describes a certain mortgage that was placed upon the property for the purpose of procuring $600,000 from Sullivan in the forwarded to him, that the mortgage was not recorded, and that the sum was forwarded to the claimant in account of damages due the plaintiff from the defendant.

Then Mr. Corliss says that he planned his brother to record the deed to protect him, but that there was delivered to Sullivan a color claim deed of the Bissell's Bay property.

Mr. Corliss asks for a number of directions, including the dissolution of the partnership, that his brother be made to pay him what is due on the partnership and that Sullivan shall be ordered to convey to him the real estate in question.

Swept along by the blustering gale propelling it like the Devil, the steamer Athena passed through the Suez Canal before January 1, 1912.

JOSEPH HENNESSY, Author, Publisher, 100 Merrimack Street, Lowell, Mass., has written a book entitled "How to Make Money in the Stock Market."

The funds of the canal will keep up their work at least until the Merrimack river navigates. They are pushing the system to try to get federal support but as yet I think the state should take more care of its people in the towns and cities of the Merrimack valley.

The city of Manchester did not take kindly to the socialist opposition to start a nationwide campaign for the Lawrence strikers who want to go back to work if the strike would only let them. The time has arrived when public districts should be denied the freedom to order them in the past.

THE IRISH HOME RULE BILL

The outline of the Home Rule Bill for Ireland as given out by a London paper is probably correct, so the measure will be easily superior to the Gladstone bill. The Home Government is to have control of customs and excise and will receive a revenue of $50,000,000 for the first three years, after which Ireland will contribute to the imperial expenses in proportion to her revenues. A feature of the new parliament is the method of bringing about an agreement with houses. The upper house will have a suspensory veto and if there is no agreement between the two houses, after the second ballot of the lower, the question will be decided by both houses voting jointly as one body. As the lower house will have 100 members and the upper 100, the result of any such vote will of course depend upon the will of the lower body. The new parliament will have no power to deal with matters which are purely imperial, such, for example, as are reserved for congress in the United States. The Irish constituency, a caste institution, will be retained for twelve years. After which the local parliament can possibly be a separate department of its own. The Irish people will accept this measure as granting legislative independence, since it is employed by Canada. This recognition of Ireland will help to strengthen the British empire by arousing in a great measure the feeling of resentment which Irishmen have carried to the ends of the earth.

CARDINAL O'CONNELL'S FAITH

The reply of Cardinal O'Connell to the greetings of his people in the cathedral in Boston on Thursday will stand as a classic of its kind, especially in the nervous with which he harmonized as one living force his spiritual devotion to the See of Peter and his undying patriotic devotion as an American citizen to his native land. There was a time when in some quarters loyalty to the Holy See was held to be inconsistent with loyalty to the Stars and Stripes, but if any proof of the falsity of such a claim were needed it is found in the patriotism of Cardinal Gibbons and in the forcible utterance of Cardinal O'Connell on this very point. Such an utterance on his homecoming after receiving the highest honor the Vatican can confer could not be made if it were in the slightest degree inconsistent with the duties of the cardinal's sacred office. The words of His Eminence on this point are likely to become historic. They were as follows:

"My American friends prize as one of God's closest gifts, according to the evidence set forth in the New Testament, the dignity of bishops and cardinals; wherein we demand my devoted attachment while life lasts to Peter's See, to my Rome and America, both have been sustained in their circumference, and I am in turn in Roman to the core in spiritual dependence and attachment as I am and ever shall be American, through and through in patriotic devotion to my own native land."

"And of those who would inquire about divided affection, I would ask, when was it forbidden that a good son to love according to their country, with all the virtues of his heart's love, both another and father?"

His discourse is in truth very strong, fervent and characteristically compact. Every act of Cardinal O'Connell proves him to be a man of great intellectual and spiritual power and second to none in his devotion and loyalty to his native land.

ANOTHER SHOCK FOR LAWRENCE

Five brutal murders in the dead of the night bring a new shock to the people of Lawrence and even sudden consternation throughout the other mill cities of New England. When such a foul crime is deliberately perpetrated, perhaps to avenge a secret or fancied grievance, the whole country must realize its moral and meanness. This dastardly quadruple murder will be a source of the stirrings who undoubtedly have just now come to the conclusion with a view to a more equitable wage scale that they are poor at some of the Lawrence mills.

This crime does not afford a doubt that there are in Lawrence at the present time people who would commit murder on the slightest provocation, people who have no regard for the law, our government or our institutions. No ordinary mill operators in general birth would not resort to such foul crimes unless goaded on by the evasions of anarchist leaders, men who have sought to incite the various parts of the country to bid the strikers in defiance and they are driven to such a state of frenzy that they are liable to go to any extreme or anybody they believe to be opposed to them.

The situation in Lowell continues on a new aspect and one which is not the most favorable as manifested on the part of the police authorities.

It is quite possible to conceive the revolutionary aspect of this article, but it will lead to a change in the legislation laws, look to some provision against the importation of weapons and dangerous characters of every kind. The three men and two women must be investigated in their own home where they resided, to know whether or not their criminal conduct where they resided can be traced, and if so, he will be arrested and justly tried.

What the motives of the quadruple murderer in Lawrence may have been is not known and often it was due to some ill feeling arising from the present strike. The man arrested shows the character of at least a portion of the strikers and others have been arrested with him, it is not surprising that the police and others have got involved with the strikers and he will be tried fairly and justly.

STARVING CHILDREN

Were Found in Room in House in Somerville

BOSTON, Feb. 3.—Six children yesterday; but, when the police went before Judge G. Roger Wainwright in session for the Prevention of Cruelty to a testimonial to poverty and neglect. Children, they found these six children. They were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Merrill of 36 Waverley street, East Somerville. They ranged from 2 years to 12 years old. Their faces bore the marks of suffering and hunger. They had been inacutely discovered by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and it had been brought in for police protection.

Behind their arraignment is a long story of poverty and disease. The father of the children is a temperance who works which is not often out to the patrol wagon. The mother struggled to provide for the four younger ones were too dazed which was very often—between the two children were going to the police did not set them down in the street lest their bare feet touch the snow—for but two of them had weak and sickly, and after her came Maria, aged 10, Bertha, 8, Marion, 6, and Marion 2 years old.

The rooms where this family lived after brushed away a tear or glibbed could hardly be called a home; it was thrown something hard in his throat, even the court sighed deep and tested out the rain and the wind, but it was above upon he forbore sextet with comers. How long the mother had been were duly set forth, the judge ordered sick or how long the father had been that the children be cared for by the out of work, no one seemed to know state board of charity.

BIG SUM FOR ROYAL ARCANUM

BOSTON, Feb. 3.—The sum of $5,000,000, held for several years by the state treasurer as an emergency fund under an old statute, will be returned to the supreme court of the Royal Arcanum as a result of a ruling of Judge Bradley in the supreme court today. When the statute in question was re-enacted by the legislature in 1901, it was changed so as to omit the clause requiring such an emergency fund to be deposited with the state treasurer. Judge Bradley today directed that a writ of mandamus be issued ordering State Treasurer Ebenezer Stevens to turn over the fund to the supreme council.

BLEW UP TRAIN ON BRIDGE

LONDON, Feb. 3.—A railroad bridge was blown up to the east of Mukden, Manchuria, this morning at three o'clock and a train was wrecked, several passengers being killed.

According to a news agency despatch from Tien Tsin received here today the outrage was committed at Chintzulin, where the railroad from Shantaihwan to Mukden passes over a river. The affair had been carefully prepared, the viaduct being undermined and charges of dynamite placed in position. When the train was in the center of the bridge the fuse was fired and the whole structure blew up.

It is not known whether rebels or bandits are responsible for the outrage.

PATROLMAN D. W. LANE

Has Been in the Police Department 33 Years

Patrolman Daniel W. Lane, the was for 20 years a trustee of the second oldest member of the police force continues in this city and John department in point of service, has Purdon wife at the present time & is just rounded out his 33rd year as a the Soldiers' home.

The only member of the department at the present time who has been in the service longer than Patrolman Lane is Patrolman Alonso Paige who does police work at city hall.

In 1884 when Capt. Michael E. McDonald of the city collector's office was made Marshal Mr. Lane was appointed an Inspect. but after performing these duties for some time he preferred a regular beat and when he made the request to City Marshal Patrolman Lane was appointed a member of the police force in January, 1890, by Mayor J. A. G. Richardson and reported for duty on the first of February. His first assignment was to a boat in Centralville. At that time there was unlimited license in this city and liquor saloons in Centralville were very numerous. In fact in one building in Bridge street, near the Centralville bridge, there were four licensed saloons.

The boats were very large and the longer the officers had to work were long. There was no police telegraph system, neither was there a patrol wagon in those days. When an arrest was made the officer had to lead the prisoner as best he could to the police station. It was anything but an easy task to escort an intoxicated person to the Market street building. And especially was it hard to handle a person who wanted to fight from the time he was picked up under arrest until he was landed in a cell.

While some persons refer to the above days as happy days they were anything but happy ones for the over-worked members of the police department.

Patrolman Lane has the proud distinction of being one of the three men who were appointed regular patrolmen without having to pass through a probationary period. The other two men were John Stevens, who

He was on duty in Merrimack square for nine years; spent 15 years patrolling Patroldo and for the past five years has been on duty at Tower's corner and Central street. He covered various other routes in different parts of the city for shorter periods of time.

On various occasions he has been commended for his bravery and arrests he made. He succeeded in capturing notorious harness thief a number of years ago. It is only a little over a year ago he captured Bagas Muckian, who is now serving a life sentence in state prison. Muckian shot and killed one man and wounded another on the postoffice steps a year ago last August.

In 1882 while Patrolman Lane was doing night duty in Centralville, he was shot by a man named McEnaney, who afterwards made his escape from Lowell and never since has been heard from. The bullet shattered the index finger of his left hand but the injury did not prove to be dangerous. McEnaney was arrested the day before the shooting by Patrolman Lane and latter leaving the court room informed several of his friends that he was going to kill the officer who arrested him, but the men with whom he talked did

MEAT PACKERS' TRIAL

Snyder Admits Margins May Have Been Obtained From Lowell

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—A telegram sent by Assistant Manager Kilp of the National Packing Co. to Manager Perkins of the Boston branch giving the average price to be asked for dressed beef in that market for the week of September 10, 1910, was introduced by Government Counsel James Sheehan in the packers' trial today. Joseph J. Hirsch, former head of the distribution department for the G. H. Hammond Co. plant of the National Packing Co., identified the telegram as being in the same general form as those sent to the branch house managers at New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and other eastern cities each week.

The telegram follows:

"Chicago, Sept. 10, 1910.
Perkins—Your beef for next week averages to cost $11.18 hundred-weight."

"Signed," Kilp."

Isidor Snyder, assistant manager of the National Packing Co. in New England states with headquarters at Boston, was the next witness called by the government.

"Did you ever obtain margins from Lowell, Mass., sales made by another packing company than the National Packing Co.?"

"I may have at some time or other," replied Snyder.

"What companies did you get margins from?"

"From Swift & Co. and Morris & Co. but not regularly."

"From whom did you get the margins?"

"Mr. Hume of Swift & Co. and Mr. Shumerville of Morris & Co."

FLOOR BURNED

An alarm from box 28 at 2:11 o'clock this afternoon summoned a portion of the fire department to a slight blaze in a house at 236 Coburn street belonging to A. Gaithier. The fire started in the rear of a small stove in one of the rooms of the building and before the house was extinguished a hole was burned through the flooring. It is thought that the blaze was caused by an overcooked stove setting the wood afire.

"I was just trying to give the old man a bit of a scare, and sure if you were scared for anything serious you wouldn't be round. Now go along about your business and don't be making a fool of yourself," Mr. Lane said there was nothing left for him to do but to obey orders and so walked away feeling that his first adventure as a police officer was a very tame and very discouraging one, to say nothing of the discomforts that went with it.

"What's the matter here?" asked Mr. Lane.

"Not a thing in the world," piped a woman who stood a little way back from where the man was sitting. Mr.

Lane noticed that the woman was a bit under the influence of liquor and he asked why she had bothered "pooh-tee-wash."

The meeting of the Lowell Social and Athletic club in Matthew Hall last evening was largely attended. The program given was one of the best presented. In the main bout Bill McKinnon of Boston appeared against Kenneth Salisbury of Somerville and the former carried off the honors. The bout was of 12 rounds and it went the entire distance.

The original card called for McKinon and Polky, the Adams heavyweight, but the latter informed the management that he couldn't appear, and Bob Lafleur of Brockton was substituted. Lafleur didn't show up and in his place was substituted Kenneth Salisbury of Somerville, a heavyweight who has figured in many amateur tournaments and has met with much success.

FOUR WERE KILLED

quest, burst in the door, which was fastened by both a spring lock and a massive lock. There was no key in the door, which meant that somebody had locked it from the outside and who saw with the key.

Horrific Scene in Tenement

The tenant, continuing their search, the door from the hall leading directly into the kitchen. In the rear of the kitchen a door in either corner opened into the two bedrooms.

When the 25th floor tenant in the left of the back stairs, they made out the back door, and went along on the floor of the fire escape with Dennis. They had been members of shop and headquarter of Murphy, went out to telephone his headquarters.

For this time a considerable crowd had gathered and was crowding over Murphy's office at the attention of Major Purcell and Capt. Walsh, Tracy, and upon hearing the news, they sent for Capt. G. of the S.A. Gloucester, Capt. Billed. The infantrymen cleared the street entirely and the greater number died the situation perfectly.

Capt. John J. Sullivan arrived from police headquarters and took charge until the medical examiner arrived.

As soon as the body was lighted up, it was seen that there were two dead men and a dead woman on the floor of the room, the wife and the unknown. In the room on the east side, with her body and head in the bed and her feet and legs hanging out of it, lay Mrs. Evelyn Dennis. In the case of only one, that of the unknown man, was there any sign of a struggle.

Both the underclothes had been done their work. It was impossible to tell what would be done in the bodies.

Men who have gone through a series of experiences told that they never had seen bodies so fearfully mangled and broken.

Stab Wounds in Each Case

All four had been killed. It was found, however, that the slasher had cut the throats. Only the unidentified man had struggled, as shown by cuts on his hands and arms which he had thrust out at the assailant.

The first bedroom on the west side of the tenement was upset. Apparently Mrs. Sava was wounded in this room, but was not killed. She was found in her night gown and stockings.

Blood prints along the wall of the tiny room and on the door to the kitchen showed where she had left her way blithely out of her room and had gone across the kitchen to the table. There she had sat down by the table and leaned her head on her hands.

Finally, either from sheer weakness or because she was again attacked, she had fallen from her chair to the floor and died there.

Her husband lay on the floor of the kitchen, between the stove and a couch on the west side of the room. The unknown man lay between Sava and his wife.

Man Fully Dressed

Mrs. Sava was the only one who had undressed. Her husband had on his trousers, which were held up by a belt. He wore a jersey undershirt and his shoes. The unidentified man was fully dressed, except for his overcoat, which lay on the floor under him. Mrs. Dennis wore her undershirt, her skirt, stockings and stockings.

When it was possible to examine the bodies it was found that all of them had been slashed on the left sides of their throats and on their faces. They had been stabbed again and again.

It was a pointed, sharp-edged weapon that did the work, and it was used both to stab and to rip.

Joseph Sava had a cut which started on the left side of his chin, went slanting backward across his jawbone, plunged deep into his neck, crossed and severed the jugular vein, skipped a little and then ended in his shoulder. He was also stabbed in the back of the neck—a wound not more than half an inch in length, but so deep that it seemed to penetrate the spinal marrow.

The left side of his neck and right side of his face were laid open as if by a cleaver. Another cut had more than 20 different wounds, none of them below his shoulders.

Stabbed Over and Over Again

Mrs. Sava was cut on the arms, her throat was cut slanting on the left side and she was stabbed.

The unidentified man was stabbed over and over again in the throat and a terrible cut had his eye open.

In Sava's pockets there was not a single penny; only three or four keys and a pocket knife.

Across the passage from the Sava tenement lived a Hebrew family named Muslen. The father heard no noise last night, although the families above the Sava tenement and below it complained bitterly that there had been a screaming fight going on in the Sava home all last night.

Miss Josie Masler, 15 years old, was wakened during the night. She thought the house was breaking in.

When she was fully awake she heard means and a man shout "Go, go! Go!" Then she heard a door shut violently somewhere in the building.

Somebody ran down the stairs between the Muslen and the Sava tenements. Miss Masler, who got out of her kitchen window into the alley and saw a man police out of the alley.

Thursday, Feb. 2, was a midnight night and the crowd being covered with snow could not penetrate it.

She saw only one man, though a boy who had come to the aid of the other.

Miss Masler said the man had his sleeves pulled up and was carrying something in his hand. She thought it was a short rifle.

He was a short, stocky man, with a stiff walk, a short gray coat and dark trousers. The girl writer looked at a girl, as if she had strike from a neighboring church. It was 2 in the morning.

Heard a Tremendous Racket

On the ground floor of the tenement lived a family by the name of Bergen. The father and the son were both awoke by a tremendous noise and screaming overhead. The father went back to his bed and went to sleep again. About 14 years ago he had moved out into the attic of Mrs. Dennis' house.

Bergen said he was asleep. The other family on the ground floor were still sleeping in the sitting room and came down at 11 and went to bed. They said the racket was the what ever during the night.

Two people who lived that same apartment house last night could believe the four rounds to be the work of one man. That a special pull of sticks and fastenings for long time could go on and that one man could overcome four, and other theory seems impossible. Yet another theory seems impossible of substantiation.

There had apparently been a party in the tenement Thursday night. There were four and twenty shooting about seven o'clock Saturday, with six kept firing part of which was the noise of the gun.

One of the parties was those who were working on the roof that night to keep the roof from falling.

Unseen Received 3 Wounds

After the shooting, Mrs. Dennis and the others who were working on the roof were sent to the hospital.

They were sent to the hospital.

At the mills which opened today there was no apparent change in the number of operators, who reported for work. It was believed that many strikebreakers would work until yesterday because of the government's offer of $1.50 per hour for the 55-hour week.

The men of Haverhill still keep up their work for making the Merrimack river navigable. They are pushing the matter not only as a federal project but as one in which the state should take a hand for the benefit of the towns and cities in the Merrimack valley.

The city of Manchester did not take kindly to the socialistic proposition to start a nation-wide subscription for the Lawrence strikers who want to go back to work if the leaders would only let them. The time has arrived when public disturbers should be denied the freedom accorded them in the past.

THE IRISH HOME RULE BILL

The outline of the home rule bill for Ireland as given out by a London paper is probably correct. If so the measure will be vastly superior to the Gladstone bill. The Irish government is to have control of customs and excise and will receive a subsidy of $50,000,000 for the first fifteen years after which Ireland will contribute to the imperial expenditure in proportion to her revenues. A feature of the new parliament is the novel method of bringing about an agreement of both houses. The upper house will have a suspensive veto and in the event of disagreement between the two houses after the second rejection of a measure, the question will be decided by both houses voting jointly as one body. As the lower house will have 103 members and the upper 67, the result of any such vote will, of course, depend upon the will of the larger body. The new parliament will have no power to deal with matters which are purely imperial, such, for example, as are reserved for congress in the United States. The Irish constabulary, a caste institution, will be retained for twelve years. After which the local parliament can provide a police department of its own. The Irish people will accept this measure as granting legislative independence same as enjoyed by Canada. This conciliation of Ireland will help to strengthen the British empire by overcoming in a great measure the feeling of resentment which Irishmen have carried to the ends of the earth.

CARDINAL O'CONNELL'S FAITH

The reply of Cardinal O'Connell to the greetings of his people in the cathedral in Boston on Thursday will stand as a classic of its kind, especially in the fervor with which he harmonized as one living force his spiritual devotion to the See of Peter and his undying patriotic devotion as an American citizen to his native land. There was a time when in some quarters loyalty to the Holy See was held to be inconsistent with loyalty to the Stars and Stripes, but if any proof of the falsity of such a claim were needed it is found in the patriotism of Cardinal Gibbons and in the forceful utterance of Cardinal O'Connell on this very point. Such an utterance on his home-coming after receiving the highest honor the Vatican can confer would not be made if it were in the slightest degree inconsistent with the duties of the cardinal's sacred office. The words of His Eminence on this point are likely to become historic. They were as follows:

"My American citizenship I prize as one of God's closest gifts to me—no man can be holier with the best that is in me and to defend with me his breath. My Roman priesthood, the dignity of bishop and cardinal, my Roman faith demand my devoted attachment while life lasts to Peter's See—surely Rome and America both have been unstruck in their manifoldness, and I in turn am Roman to the core in spiritual allegiance and attachment, as I am and ever shall be American through and through in patriotic devotion to my own, my native land."

"And of those who would quibble about divided affection, I would ask when was it forbidden to any good son to love according to their merits, with all the fullness of his heart's love, both mother and father?"

His discourse as a whole was strong, fervent and characteristically eloquent. Every act of Cardinal O'Connell proves him to be a man of great intellectual and spiritual power and second to none in his devotion and loyalty to his native land.

ANOTHER SHOCK FOR LAWRENCE

Four brutal murders in the dead of the night bring a new shock to the people of Lawrence and even spreads consternation throughout the other mill cities of New England. When such a foul crime is deliberately perpetrated, perhaps to avenge some real or fancied grievance, the whole community must feel a sense of dread and insecurity. This dastardly quadruple murder will injure the cause of the strikers who undoubtedly have just grievances that should be considered with a view to a more equitable wage scale than has been in force in some of the Lawrence mills.

This crime shows beyond a doubt that there are in Lawrence at the present time people who would commit murder on the slightest provocation, people who have no respect for the law, our government or our institutions. The ordinary mill operatives of foreign birth would not resort to such foul crimes unless goaded on by the exhortations of anarchist leaders, men who have come to Lawrence from other parts of the country to hold the strikers in filth until they are driven to such a state of frenzy that they are liable to go out and murder police or anybody they believe to be opposed to them.

The situation in Lawrence thus takes on a new aspect and one which calls for the most rigid and severe methods on the part of the police authorities.

It is quite probable, in view of the revolutionary aspect of this strike, that it will lead to a change in the immigration laws, leading to some proscription against the importation of anarchists and dangerous characters of every kind. The time is at hand when immigrants must be investigated in their own land where their character is known rather than on their arrival in this country where the most dangerous criminal can pass muster as well as the most desirable and law-abiding immigrant that sails our shores.

What the motive for the quadruple murder in Lawrence may have been is not known; but the cause was doubtless due to some ill-feeling arising from the present strike. The crime in itself shows the character of at least a portion of the men the Lawrence authorities have to contend with, and it is a fresh proof that the socialistic and anarchist agitators must be driven out and silenced before the issues involved can be settled fairly and justly. Every fair-minded citizen desires they should be soothed.

COLONEL ROOSEVELT FOUR WERE KILLED

Says That He Believes in Women's Rights

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Theodore Roosevelt discusses "Women's Rights and the Duties of Both Men and Women" in an editorial in the current issue of the Outlook. He says in part:

Much, indeed, has America owed to the fact that her two greatest men, Washington and Lincoln, though they did not neglect rights, were even more concerned with duties.

I believe in woman's rights. I believe even more earnestly in the performance of duty by both men and women; for unless the average man and the average woman live lives of duty, not only our democracy but civilization itself will perish. I heartily believe in equality of rights as between men and women, but also in full and complete recognition of the fact that normally there cannot be identity of function. Indeed, there must normally be complete dissimilarity of function between them, and the effort to ignore this patent fact is silly. I believe in woman's suffrage wherever the women want it. Where they do not want it, the suffrage should not be forced upon them. I think that it would be well to let the women themselves, and only the women, vote at some special election as to whether they do or do not wish the vote as a permanent possession. In other words, this is peculiarly a case for the referendum to those most directly affected—that is, the women themselves.

The point which I wish to emphasize is that the supreme importance and high position of the woman of the type of Julia Ward Howe can not be materially increased by the possession of the ballot. I am glad that the good, wise, brave mother should have the ballot. I am especially glad if its possession will add to the high dignity of her position as regards both men and women. There should be equality of rights and duties, but not identity of function, and with the man, as with the woman, the prime duties are those related to the home and the family.

It is the movement as anything like as important as either its extreme friends or extreme opponents think. It is so much less important than many other reforms that I have never been able to take a very decided interest in it.

If the woman suffrage movement were to be judged only by those advocates of it who discredit themselves and their sex by disorderly antics in public and who assail the female tions of private and public morality in their endeavor, not to raise the sense of moral duty in man, but to lower the sense of moral duty in women. I should certainly oppose the movement. But I do not believe these undesirable practices are in any way to be accepted as opponents of the cause, and I call attention to the fact that they are prominent, not in the region where woman suffrage does exist, but in regions where it does not exist.

I put my faith to woman suffragists of the type of the late Julia Ward Howe. Julia Ward Howe was one of the foremost citizens of this republic, she rendered service to the people such as few men in any generation render; and yet she did, first of all, her full duty in the intimate home relations that must ever take precedence of all other relations.

In our western states where the suffrage has been given to woman, I am unable to see that any great difference has been caused, as compared with neighboring states of similar social and industrial conditions where women have not the suffrage. Yet what slight changes have occurred have been for the better, and not the worse.

I most earnestly desire to emphasize my feeling that the question of woman suffrage is unimportant compared to the great fundamental questions that go to the root of right conduct as regards both men and women. There should be equality of rights and duties, but not identity of function, and with the man, as with the woman, the prime duties are those related to the home and the family.

HORSFALL TRIAL

Defendant Was Principal Witness Yesterday

The trial of James H. Horsfall of Lowell on a charge of manslaughter in causing the death of Mrs. Ruth Kittridge, aged 74, of Tewksbury, in an automobile accident in Wilmington, Nov. 11, was resumed in the East Cambridge superior court yesterday.

Horsfall testified that he had four friends in Boston before starting to run the automobile from Boston to Lowell. His testimony will be continued Monday.

Charles Brooks and Thomas Thomas, occupants of the machine, testified that Horsfall handled the car well. Others who testified were Edward Barker, Mr. Foley, Harry Adams, William C. Brant and Forester J. W. Smith of Boston Weather Bureau, who told of the weather conditions the day of the accident.

NORTH CHELMSFORD

Another day, as well as the first Friday of the month, was observed yesterday in St. John's church North Chelmsford at 7:30 mass the candles were blessed by Rev. Dr. Doherty. In the evening at 7:30 a large congregation was present at the devotions, Rosary, intercessions and benediction of the mass blessed sacrament were given.

Rev. Dr. Schenck, pastor of St. John's church, attended the mass of thanksgiving in honor of Cardinal O'Connell in the Cathedral in Boston, Thursday.

Last evening in St. John's hall the second of a series of whist parties was held. There was a very large attendance during the evening and all had an enjoyable time. Many were present from Lowell and Granville. From 8 to 9 a delightful piano recital was given by Master Walter O'Neill a talented member of the Boys' Club, and it was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Promptly at 8:30 whist was commenced and continued until 10:30. During the totaling of the scores refreshments were served, after which dancing was started and continued until midnight. At the close of the affair all voted it a great success. The accompanist for dancing was Master Walter O'Neill. The winners of the prizes were as follows: Ladies' prizes—Mrs. Lavelle and Dr. Emma Slaughter of Lowell were tied for first honors and they were obliged to cut the book and Mrs. Lavelle was the winner of the first prize, a ladies' umbrella. The second prize, a set of gold pins, was awarded to Dr. Emma Slaughter. The ladies' consolation prize was given to Miss Nellie Ward. The gentleman's first prize, a set of cuff links, was won by James Potter; the second prize, a watch fob, was won by Dan Harrington. The gentleman's consolation was given to M. B. Lovell of Granville. The scores were Misses Mary Cox, Rev. Mr. Lavelle and James P. Quigley. The committee in charge was Misses Charlotte Lowe, Jennie Lavelle and Lorraine Ward.

The members of the Dramatic circle of the Catholic club are progressing with their rehearsals for the presentation of the drama to be held in the town hall on February 16th.

The many friends of Mrs. Nellie Ward will be pleased to learn that she is convalescent after a very serious operation in the Lowell hospital.

TEAMS SPLIT EVEN

Lively Game Played in City League

The Olympic and Crescents split in a game in the City League series last night, each team winning two points, but the Crescents won the total by nearly half a hundred pins. The first string was well contested, but the Crescents had everything their own way in the second string and in the third string the Crescents lost by four pins. J. F. Donohoe of the Crescents was high man, having a total of 242, while Lorraine of the Olympics put up 235.

The First Congregational church team of the Batavia league gave the St. Paul's team a severe trouncing in the above last night, the former team winning all four points. J. Houston and Charlie of the winning team were high man.

The game between the Pawtucket Blues and Mt. Groves resulted in a victory for the Mt. Groves, which won every point. The scores, however, were unusually low.

FAVORS AND GIFTS FOR ST. VALENTINE BIRTHDAY SUPPERS

THIS girl who is going to entertain on St. Valentine's day will do well to resurrect her old box of valentines, which most girls keep from year to year, and make her own favors for the dance and supper. In this way a great deal of expense is saved. Among the old box of valentines there will be found plenty of material for new favors. For instance, old box valentines can be converted into attractive souvenirs by covering boxes of the correct shape with gilt or silver paper and pasting the old fashioned lace emblems on the tops.

At one valentine dinner that is to be given this year to announce an engagement there will be at each place a heart shaped frame, made of tiny pink rosesbuds, the kind that can be bought in bunches for 5 cents each.

These are sewed closely to a frame of pasteboard tinted a deep pink. Within each frame is a picture of the fiancee, copied from an old group, and a surprise to the engaged ones as well as to the other guests. The picture is covered with a sheet of silver paper, on which is written the name of the guest. To it is attached an end of pink ribbon, which at a signal given later by the hostess is pulled and the faces of the happy couple are revealed within the frames.

Great fun are ruined valentines, composed by the hostess for each guest, and especially illuminated by her, or if her artistic skill is small, written on plain notepaper, around which are pasted borders of red hearts.

Love messages for the day of Cupid are not difficult of home manufacture. The "Cupid's Courier" to be seen among the cuts is quite within the scope of amateur talent. As you may see the

Loveland News, and she is carrying half a score of tender messages for its sentimental import. Any love poems, Mrs. Browning's "Secrets From the Partnership" or some of Whitcomb Riley's "Love Lyrics" or love stories attractively bound are very suitable offerings on Feb. 14. The books may be sent by a man or a girl.

In the picture is seen, too, one of the "pretty follies" of lovers of which Shakespeare speaks. It is the use of notepaper made especially for sweethearts' correspondence. On it are marked the hearts and the portraits and the curly cues and the Cupid's arrows, which represent undying affection, sometimes with the name or initial of the beloved one.

A variation of this kind of fancy is the use of notepaper cut into heart shape.

The double sheet is so made that the recipient of the much longer for missive may know at a glance that the writer's whole heart, represented in paper, goes with the letter. This is an English fad that has not yet received widespread notice on this side of the water, but it is as sure as anything can be, of course, that American lovers of both sexes are just going to send their love on heart shaped paper or on paper marred with hearts. Only, they mustn't be absentminded, as lovers are apt to be, and use the lovers' notepaper in writing to the butcher, the baker or the candlestick maker. It must be put aside carefully for writing only to one's really, truly sweetheart.

Smocking Revived

For Children's Clothes

SMOCKING, that simple yet decorative fashion of trimming, is once more coming into popularity. Especially for the children and the growing girls is this style of ornamentation adapted. Even plain rompers of the small tote which are otherwise unrelieved of their plainness, unless by a patent leather belt, have short panels of smocking running from the neck line at the front. The most unassuming little cotton fabric dress is enhanced with smocking at neck, elbow and waist, and, as for the coats of the tamarins, smocking in a light color silk may form the only yoke and cuff attraction on a plain black velvet top garment. A lovely silk coat for the small girl showing an entire absence of lace, but a decidedly pretty substitute in the form of smocking at neck, the collar depth in cedar silk is a choice fashion; then this same coat has the slim border on skirt, and the smocked full sleeves held in at wrists with the same style trimming, and again at the waist line it forms the girdle width. To the border. This makes the smocking yoke with the point at center front, midway and at finish of the elbow sleeves and again at the waist, as in the younger fashions. The cloudy veiling overdress had a substantial gathering band at the bottom of the skirt and was worn over pale blue silk to complete the artistic effect.

Tools in the Home

A TACK in time is sometimes as necessary as the proverbial stitch. Tools are necessary to make the small repairs about the house, and a box of them should be ever ready at the housekeeper's hand.

Nor is the fashion sleeping with the younger generation, for styles are shown for the older sisters with simple blouses that boast of no more elaborate motif than that formed by the smocking on yoke and the entire length of the top of sleeves. Indeed, the fashion has so many possibilities that it is hard to tell where it will end when it is once fairly re-established. One charming costume for a young girl, which was well cited with the attractive Persian border on skirt, had the smocked full sleeves held in at wrists with the same style trimming, and again at the waist line it forms the girdle width. To the border. This makes the smocking yoke with the point at center front, midway and at finish of the elbow sleeves and again at the waist, as in the younger fashions. The cloudy veiling overdress had a substantial gathering band at the bottom of the skirt and was worn over pale blue silk to complete the artistic effect.

A real yell is far easier to remedy than an imaginary one. Most people will disagree with me—at first.

"Oh," they will exclaim unfeelingly, "how ridiculous!" An imaginary yell is—well, it's only imaginary, while a real yell does a definite amount of harm."

Exactly. Strange as it may seem, that is my very point.

A real yell does a definite amount of harm—of course it does—but the harm is certain, material, calculable, something which may be arrested and killed.

With an imaginary yell there is nothing solid to grasp or to fight; it is a vague, safety something which envelops and blinds us, in which we wander dazedly, knowing neither its origin, its power nor its purpose.

There is a dark cloud of the imagination which envelopes and scatters the lives of many women today and seems as though it would grow into even greater darkness tomorrow and after. It is the twentieth century woman's curse—a very field of unrest and vague discontent.

Let me look into it, analyze it, try to suggest some remedies, for I am sure that many who are reading this article either suffer from it or through it.

First, then, what is it? When a girl is growing into womanhood she begins to understand the world, its ways and all there is, or may be, in it for her. She experiences her first disappointments and let us carefully follow her progress.

The beginnings are generally at home, for it is not only charity that starts there.

The cause is sometimes small and altogether fascinating. She may want to do her hair up, go to a dance or see a play with friends or her own cheating, or go to a bridge party or on the stage, or to read some very doubtful novel.

Possibly the parental foot descends heavily and doubtfully, squeezing her young ideas, or perhaps Miss Nineteen-hundred-and-twelve is allowed to do as she wishes, which is more probable and more disastrous.

For what happens next? She has certain desires—vanity, perchance, and comparatively unimportant, but definite and clear desire, after all. They were gratified; she was allowed to have her own way and then no longer wanted it—or, at least, no longer cared for having it.

So of she goes again, her imagination exerting wildly after some new fancy, until checked, she broods over some other grievance. Her self will ride rough shod over reason, happiness, love—the girl is never happy unless discontented.

She goes through the whole list of definite disappointments—money, dress, company, leisure, amusement—she wants them all, and the lack of any in the world.

There are many well dressed women in the world, nevertheless, and a pair of made wings of plaited scarf on who have not yet decided to interest in what always the spring back into just entwined with scarlet their entire satisfaction that their winsome black ribbon has been chosen wisely.

First she may be told that Regency ladies in general are a very favorite but, on the other hand, there are many to be very predominant, second that, and third it is in the coming other women who already tired of jaunty hats and gay-colored their winter headgear are eagerly welcoming the demiseason hats that are appearing in the shops.

No matter how much a woman's common sense may condemn the practice of introducing straw hats this

"fence" of plaided vines with ribbons and ribbon alterations.

Delicious Creole Candies

PECAN Pralines.—Put a pound of brown cane sugar in a porcelain lined sauceron with enough water, about four tablespoonsfuls, to melt the sugar and stir until liquid. As it begins to boil add half a pound of freshly shelled pecans. Cut some in the shreds and some in halves and quarters. Stir constantly until the syrup thickens and turns to sugar, then remove from the fire and drop on a slab. A pound of the unpeeled pecans will give you half a pound of the nut meats. Peanuts may be substituted for the pecans.

La Caille.—The old negro candy vendors of New Orleans have made this candy famous to visitors to the Crescent City. To make it take two pounds of brown sugar or a quart of black molasses and boil it down to almost a pint of syrup. To this dark syrup add almost a pint of pecan nuts cut up in irregular sizes and a portion of them crushed. When it has boiled long enough to pass like a thread between thumb and finger pour into little fluted paper cases elongated in shape, making a cake about four inches long, two inches wide and about quarter or half an inch thick. Let these dry. The cases may be made of stiff writing paper if you cannot get other paper of the proper size and shape.

Mais Tac-Tac.—Take a pint of molasses and put it on to boil. When it reaches the boiling point throw into it about three-quarters of a pound of parched Indian corn or maize, parched to a blossom (peppered snow white). Stir until well mixed and pour into paper cases about six inches long and three inches wide, making a cake about one and a half inches deep. Do not handle them until they are cool. There should be just enough of the syrup to coat the corn nicely and bind together. Cream Pecans.—These dainty bonbons are the thing to serve at afternoon tea. Take a pound of the finest pecans and shell them carefully, keeping them in perfect halves. Take the white of a very fresh egg and its weight in water, beat together until it is creamy, then work into it with finger tips a quarter of a pound of the finest confectioner's sugar, forming a smooth paste. Pinch off a bit of the paste about the size of a small marble and roll it into a ball, place it between two halves of pecan meats, press lightly, then roll lightly in the paste, flattening the pecan slightly. The brown of the nut meat must show through the thin coating of the paste.

Orange Pastilles.—First make the orange sugar by crushing the rind of the orange on a leaf of coarse cane sugar and dry. Take three and a half ounces of coarse white sugar and add to the orange sugar the strained juice of two oranges. As soon as it begins to dissolve stir it with a wooden paddle for a few minutes, then remove from the fire, stirring continuously and drop on a sheet of paper, cutting off in drops.

STARVING CHILDREN Were Found in Room in House in Somerville

BOSTON, Feb. 3.—Six children, ragged and pale, ranged themselves before Judge L. Roger Wentworth in the Somerville district court yesterday, a testimonial to poverty and neglect. They were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Merrill, of 6 Worcester st., East Somerville. They ranged from 2 years to 13 years old. Their faces bore the marks of suffering and hunger. They had been accidentally discovered by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and had been brought in for home protection.

Behind their arraignment is a long story of poverty and disease, the suffering of children in a tenement when its workers—which is not stated. The mother struggled to provide for them as when she herself presented which was very often—and between the two the children were going to God.

The oldest is Ethel, aged 13, a girl weak and sickly, and after her come Linda, aged 12; Bertha S., Mabel 6, Ed. 4, and Marion, 2 years old.

The rooms where this family lived could hardly be called a home. It was rather a shelter from the street. It kept out the rain and the wind, but it was down upon the floor soot with compassion. When the facts in the case were duly set forth, the judge ordered that the children be cared for by the out-of-work, no one seemed to know state board of charity.

BIG SUM FOR ROYAL ARCANUM

BOSTON, Feb. 3.—The sum of $5,000,100, held for several years by the state treasurer as an emergency fund under an old statute, will be returned to the supreme court of the Royal Arcanum as a result of a ruling of Judge Braley in the supreme court today. When the statute in question was enacted by the legislature in 1901 it was changed so as to omit the clause requiring such an emergency fund to be deposited with the state treasurer. Judge Braley today directed that a writ of mandamus be issued ordering State Treasurer Elmer Stevens to turn over the fund to the supreme court.

BLEW UP TRAIN ON BRIDGE

LONDON, Feb. 3.—A railroad bridge was blown up to the east of Mukden, Manchuria, this morning at three o'clock and a train was wrecked, several passengers being killed.

According to a news agency despatch from Tien Tsin received here today the outrage was committed at Chintzalin, where the railroad from Shantialwan to Mukden passes over a river. The affair had been carefully prepared, the viaduct being undermined and charges of dynamite placed in position. When the train was in the center of the bridge the fuse was fired and the whole structure blew up.

It is not known whether rebels or bandits are responsible for the outrage.

SENATOR GRADY DEAD

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—State Senator Thomas F. Grady, long identified with Tammany Hall as one of its leaders and known as the "Silver Tongued" orator of that organization, died at his home in this city early today. Senator Grady had long served in the legislature at Albany and has been the leader of his party on the floor of the senate. Mr. Grady, who lived on East Thirtieth street, had been suffering from a complication of diseases for some time.

ABDICTION OF CHINESE THRONE

PEKING, Feb. 3.—Premier Yuan Shikai is still engaged in negotiating the minor details of the abdication of the throne with the revolutionary leaders. He was received in audience today by the empress dowager whom he informed that he was hopeful of an expeditious settlement.

SERVIAN CABINET

RESIGNED BECAUSE OF "BLACK HAND" CONSPIRACY

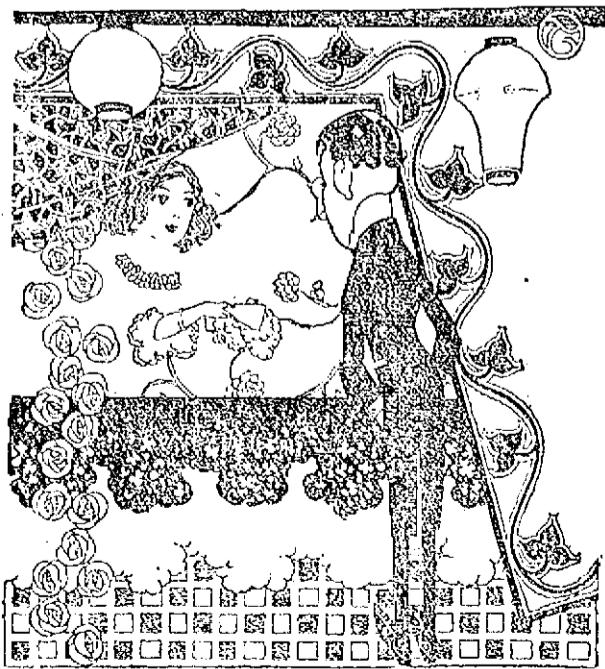

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 3.—The Servian cabinet has resigned. The ministers took this step partly on account of the recent discovery of what is known as the "black hand" conspiracy in the army to force King Peter to dismiss the radical cabinet or to abdicate in favor of the crown prince. Another reason given for the resignation is that the support afforded by the parliament to the government has declined considerably.

First Flat Dweller—The walls are so thin that I can hear their joints crack when they're talking.

Arraigned in court, they made a pitiful spectacle. Many a callous court officer brushed away a tear or gulped down something hard in his throat. Even the court sighed deep and looked out the window with compassion. When the facts in the case were duly set forth, the judge ordered that the children be cared for by the out-of-work, no one seemed to know state board of charity.

Floor Walker—is anyone waiting on you, Miss?
